

Problem identified: NOW WHAT?

You see the bind

Author David Gleason of At What Cost? has revealed the dilemma: highly competitive schools feel deeply committed to educating their students in healthy, safe, and balanced ways, challenging them with appropriate rigor, and meeting their students where they are. Yet these same educators also admit that they have been overscheduling, overworking, and sometimes overwhelming their students.

Next steps

Developmental Empathy, LLC, partnered with National School Reform Faculty®, originators of Critical Friends Group® work, to develop a 2-day workshop helping you take action around this dilemma. Your team, with expert facilitation support, will identify harmful practices to eliminate or modify, and positive practices to adopt and implement. You will leave with a personalized action plan supported by David Gleason's research.

Details

Plan a 2-day workshop with David Gleason, Founder and Director of Developmental Empathy, LLC, and Michele Mattoon, NSRF Director, to work with 15 members of your administrative team. The facilitated, structured conversations will use your team's expertise to develop specific, actionable steps, shifting your community gradually towards a healthier school culture. Contact us to discuss your needs.
